

Postdoctoral position in Department of Immunology, School of Medicine, University of Connecticut Health Center

Postdoctoral positions are immediately available to study inflammation and immunity in colorectal cancer development. Our laboratory aims to uncover mechanisms of cross communication between immune cells and cancer cells using a variety of technologies and approaches. Current projects focus on the role of tumor-associated inflammation in regulating colorectal cancer development and immunity. More information can be found at:

<http://facultydirectory.uhc.edu/profile?profileId=Wang-Kepeng>

Potential candidates should possess a Ph.D., or M.D. and have strong interests in the biomedical sciences and a commitment to teamwork and learning new methods. Experience with in vivo and in vitro models along with an interest in the study of cellular and molecular mechanisms is desirable. If interested please send your CV, a one page description of your research experience, and the contact information of three references all in a single pdf document to kewang@uchc.edu.

Kepeng Wang, Ph.D.
Department of Immunology-MC1319
University of Connecticut Health Center
263 Farmington Avenue
Farmington, CT 06030
email: kewang@uchc.edu

UConn Health is an affirmative action employer in addition to an EEO and M/F/V/PwD employer.